Business Risk Assessment

The Vindis Group currently employs circa. 750 team members across the aforementioned regions and is committed to ensuring that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our business or within our supply chain. The group has adequate internal policies in place to ensure modern slavery and human right abuses do not occur in our business by:

- A centralised HR & Payroll function that strives to ensure compliance to all recruitment, induction, training and payroll policies and procedures.
- An independent Grievance and Whistleblowing Procedure ensuring people have a way to raise a concern so that robust investigation(s) can take place.

In addition to this:

- The Vindis Group identified, during a review in 2019, that although the relevant checks and monitoring methods are in place with our larger contractors/suppliers, there was a further opportunity to review our entire supply chain; including those less frequently utilised to produce a centralised, agreed and compliant supplier/contractor list. This list has been identified and the Vindis Group has contacted our entire supply chain to ensure that all contractors and suppliers are compliant with this statement and aligned to our business' values; Pioneering Mindset; Exceptional People; High Performance Culture; Customer Obsession and Sustainable Processes.
- This included a risk rating and mapping exercise of all suppliers and contractors working with the Vindis Group. If the relevant due diligence, or confidence in the suppliers/contractors adherence to our statement, in this regard cannot be produced, agreements are paused until sufficient documentation/evidence is provided. If the supplier/contractor(s) fails to produce this information upon request, within a reasonable timeframe, the Vindis Group will terminate all agreements with the contractor/supplier.

Due to the franchise nature of our business, with the Volkswagen Group, the majority of our supply chain relationships have legal contracts in place with specific policy clauses ensuring compliance to the Modern Slavery Act 2015. All other supplier relationships will be reviewed in accordance with this.
